

Pancake Thief

Forgive me
For stealing
Your pancakes

I sneaked over
While you were gone
I stole them so quickly
Eating them even faster

So warm and soft
Your pancakes were
Filled with butter and syrup
Delicious

By Conner C. 8th Grade

Don't Forget Doggy

Forgive me
For forgetting you

I was in a rush
You were so hushed
I had to go

Just so you know
You will get extra dinner
With snacks and dessert in all

By Conner C. 8th Grade

Many Apologies

I'm sorry for all the silly things I have done
Burning my hand
Sewing my finger
Leaving toothpicks out on which dad stepped on
I was young and foolish, no care in the world

I'm sorry for all the past things that have occurred
Skipping my lessons
Wasting my life on the computer
Breaking six plates in three days
I wasn't thinking of the outcome

For all these things I apologize
For you are my mother, the one who has taught me so much
Now though, I have learned from my mistakes and corrected them
Allowing me to excel in my academic career and studies

Once more, I am sorry for causing you any stress
In the future, I hope to make it up to you

By Amy R. 8th Grade

Fluffy Furs

Sorry for always strangling your body
Your fur just always seems so fluffy and soft
I keep forgetting how fragile your body can be, for a cat I mean
Sorry for wishing you can just be glued to my chest
Then maybe you can't run away from me when I come to seize you
It's had to resist you with that brick-colored nose
Soft purrs when asleep
With just a little eye hoping to sneak a peek at me
Sorry for chasing you around the room

By Rachel W. 8th grade

