

Little Toy Friends

(or tales my teddy bear never told me)

An original poetry assignment from found at <http://WritingFix.com>

Today, you'll be planning to write a poem where two of your toys each has its own experience. Just like the toy soldier in Robert Louis Stevenson's The Dumb Solider, your toy will find itself alone for a while, and something interesting will happen to it.

This brainstorming sheet will help you include great details in your poem's rough draft. There is a brainstorming sheet on the backside of this page for brainstorming your other toy's experience.

Where will your toy be during its "adventure"? How did it get there? Please write three or four sentence in this box to get your ideas flowing.

While on its "adventure," my toy heard...

(use lots of descriptive words when filling in this box)

While on its "adventure," my toy saw...

(use lots of descriptive words when filling in this box)

While on its "adventure," my toy smelled...

(use lots of descriptive words when filling in this box)

While on its "adventure," my toy tasted...

(use lots of descriptive words when filling in this box)

While on its "adventure," my toy physically felt...

(use lots of descriptive words when filling in this box)

While on its "adventure," my toy emotionally felt...

(use lots of descriptive words when filling in this box)